AT THE 'VILLE.

Institute Commencement.

Last week Tuesday was devoted to the alumni, and many pleasant hours were spent greeting old friends. At the business meeting of the Alumni Association the following officers were elected: President, Roy Gage, '04; vice president, F. B. Nelson, '86; secretary and treas-urer, Susan Cunningham, '91; executive committee, M. E. Daniels, '96, Edward Riley, '97, Marion Flower, '03. In the evening the alumni and guests were addressed by Rev. F. B. Nelson of Wheelock. Music by a male quartet was much enjoyed.

The trustees and corporators' meeting was also held Tuesday, and the business and financial side of the institution was discussed. Three new trustees were elected: T. N. Vail, L. B. Harris and J. H. Fuller. The pleasing announcement was made by the treasurer that the year had been successful financially as in every other way, and there was a surplus in the treasury.

The weather was decidedly un-propitious Wednesday, but no spirits were dampened thereby. At 10 o'clock Music Hall was well filled by friends of the graduates. The stage was very nicely arranged with chairs, sofas, cushions, ferns and palms and gave the effect of a pleasant parlor. A pleasing innovation was allowing the graduates to be scated on the stage, where they made a very attractive picture. Good music by the Lyndonville orchestra. The present class of 15 members is the argest graduated from the school since 1891. It is a class of excellent achievement and promise. Aftermusic, and prayer by Rev. J. C. Bodwell, Miss Hazel Cunningham opened the program with an essay on "The elixir of life-Sympathy." Her subject was an original one, and well wrought out. Janet Bundy gave a very accurate and painstaking sketch of the life of "Jeanne d'Arc." Carl Smith spoke on "A critical period," with a sensible, clear-sighted but by no means an alarmist view of present conditions in this country. Florence Giffin in "The reward of music," extolled the praises of this "art of arts" in a very pleasing way. Cleopatra, the "Serpent of the Nile" was graphically portrayed by Grace Finney, who sought to re-instate this much maligned queen. "Failure through success," was demonstrated by Glenn Buck. Amelia Lee's subject "Constitutions are not made, but grow," showed a wide range of historical and political knowledge.

Nina Sheldon spoke on "The Idyls of the King," and the beauty of Tennyson's poems. "Aids to character building" by Dana Smith was an oration full of excellent suggestions for developing fine character. Edith Giffin delivered a scholarly essay on "Intellectual improvement and the imagination." Miss Grace Deoss' sketch of "Historic Plymouth" was an interesting one, and exceptionally well delivered. Wilder Arthur Simpson gave a ringing oration against "The misuse of wealth." "Beyond the Alps lies Italy," is an old subject, but received convincing and original treatment by Miss Fave Newell. Herbert Burnham amused the class and audience very much by his absurd prophecies, delivered in his accustomed faultless manner. "Eis to Prosthen," "Forward," the class motto, and valedictory were given by Nellie Guenn Fisher. Burke, After music, Principal Harris Georg announced the honors and prizes as folows: Honors-Freshman class: Ruth Butler, Florence Chesley, Howard Ford, Emile Goss, Ila Parker, Homer Watson, Beth Gorham, George Ferguson; high-est honors to Ruth Butler. Sophomore class: Charles Harris, Ila Barber; highest to Miss Barber. Junior class: May Campbell, Walter Cleary, Edith Gray: highest to Walter Cleary. Senlor class: Janet Bundy, Edith Giffin, Wilder Simpson, Amelia Lee, Guenn Burke, Grace Finney; highest to Amelia Lee. Commercial class: Howard Allen, Ethel Eastman. The highest honors in the school | move there. were won by Ruth Butler. The prizes for speaking were won by the Junior class as follows: First prize, $10, Edith Gray; second prize, $5 divided between Frederick Rainey and May Campbell; third prize to Minnie Jones. A scholarship prize of $15 for the graduate having the best standing for four years was awarded to Amelia Lee. A second prize, the Fuller prize of a set of books, was won by Janet Bundy. Two prizes were given or the senior orations, the first, $10 in gold, won by Grace Finney; the second, $5 in gold by Carl Smith. Mr. Harris then presented diplomas to 15 graduates; to the commercial course graduates: Howard Allen, Anna Eastman and Ethel Flood, and a Latin scientific diploma to Miss Hortense Murch, who has taken a post-graduate course this year. The exercises closed with benediction by Rev. J. C. Bodwell and though long were unusually interesting. Immediately following was the alumni dinner, served by the Congregational Ladies' Aid society in the vestry. A bountiful repast was enjoyed, followed by a "feast of reason and flow of soul," also appreciated. George D. Thompson made a most efficient toastmaster, and post-prandial speeches were made by Sadie Sheldon, Wilder Simpson, Harold Fuller, E. H. Hoffman, Principal Harris, M. E. Daniels and E. M. Campbell.

The ball game between Institute and alumni was won by the former 19 to 16 but a fine drizzling rain put an effectual damper on both players and audience. For the same reason, doubtless, but a small audience assembled in the evening to hear Edward P. Elliott, the imperson ator, and Herbert Howard, a famous boy soprano. The concert was good and much approved by those who braved the elements to attend.

Commencement closed with a big bon fire on Reservoir bill and doubtless many mystic and important rites known only to the initiated. It was successful and delightful from beginning to end and fittingly closes one of the most prosperous rears the school has ever had.

We are glad to learn that Principal Harris is to be here another year, as he the community and of his pupils. It is expected that the rest of the faculty, also, will be returned and that Miss Ethel Chapman, '00, U. V. M. '05, will be added, teaching English and history. The prospects for the coming year are bright, and with the support of its friends, the Institute will continue to rank among the best preparatory schools in the state.

Trainmen Got a Deer.

The Boston Sunday Globe of June 18 tells an interesting story of how two Lyndonville men got venison for dinner: "A strange experience is reported by Boston & Maine freight extra 46, en route recently from White River Junction to Lyndonville, which was made up with four flat cars next to the caboose. Just after going by Thetford, while runnin about 20 miles on hour, the train start ed a deer (buck) which in its fright tried to jump over the flat cars. The train was moving too last for him and he struck the end door of the caboose, smashing the door and shooting inside.

"To say that the train men in the aboose were startled is putting it mildly. The deer was killed immediately, as he great force with which it struck the door broke most of the bones in its body.

"The deer weighed about 135 pounds Charles Fisher, conductor, and Charles Buckley, engineer, both of Lyndonville, were allowed to keep the carcass of the

S. C. Servas of Boston, a professional olf player, was in town last week and that afternoon played around the links to the admiration of a number of spectators. His opponent was one of our best players, C. L. Stuart, whom he defeated 12 up on 18 holes. Hisscore was 37 and 34, or 71, against 47 and 50, or 97 for Mr. Stuart. His best record was made on the seventh hole, Brook Vale, which he played in 2, his first lrive landing him over three feet beyond the hole. The reunion held at "Grove" schoolhouse Saturday June 24th was a very pleasant affair, there being about 175 old teachers, pupils, and their families present. Tables were set in the grove near the schoolhouse, and the dinner spoke well for the cooks among the ladies present. After dinner there was an hour spent in speeches, songs and recitations by the children and it was voted to make it an annual reunion.

The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Clement Monday evening, June 19, was a most enjoyable social event, a large number of neighbors and friends being present. Among the presents were a beautiful set of china, two dozen knives and forks, a tea pot of china covered with gold filagree from Mr. and Mrs. Percival W. Clement, a purse of gold from friends in town, and many other useful and valuable gifts. Refreshments of cake, ice cream and lemonade were served. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clement, of North Carolina, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clement and three children of Burlington were among the guests.
